TEXTILE CARE - CATALOGUE

INTRODUCTION

The Textile Master product range has been specially developed by the Uniters Research Centre for the maintenance of most types of textile and microfibre products. The range includes individual products and kits for cleaning, de-staining and protecting against various types of stains and dirt. Use Textile Master products on textile upholstered armchairs and sofas, drapery, mattresses, carpets and apparel.

MAINTENANCE OF TEXTILES

Textiles are manufactured from natural fibres like cotton, linen or wool, as well as modified natural fibres like viscose or rayon and synthetic fibres like polyester, polyamides and microfibres. All these fibre types have different physical and chemical properties that in turn not only influence the strength and stain resistance of the textiles, but also determine what sort of maintenance is required. To maintain a textile correctly, you must know what sort of fibres it is manufactured from.

REGULAR TEXTILE MAINTENANCE

Whether a textile is made from natural, artificial, synthetic fibres or microfibres, some simple rules must be followed to help maintain its looks without risking irreversible damage. See suggestions below;

1. DUSTING

All textiles subjected to friction, like seats and carpets require weekly dusting to prevent microscopic particles of dust from becoming attached to the fibres and cutting them under the effect the mechanical action inevitable with normal wear. Failure to dust textiles on a regular basis leads to accelerated wear.

To dust textiles upholstered furniture, use a vacuum cleaner fitted with a soft furniture brush or a normal carpet cleaning attachment.

2. CLEANING

All textiles subject to normal use must be cleaned regularly to avoid becoming soiled in appearance. If they are not cleaned, dirt and perspiration penetrate into the fibres, causing serious fading and weakening the textile.

At least every 6 months, thoroughly clean all areas of textiles that come into contact with the human body to prevent the fibres from being attacked by the fatty acids contained in perspiration. Everybody perspires!

The absence of stains on textiles does not mean that perspiration is not already penetrating them.

In all cases, dusting alone is never able to eliminate dirt, but must be backed up by cleaning. Dusting alone removes just surface dirt but leaves dirt stuck to and encrusted in the deeper fibres.

EASY TO CLEAN CONCEPT

The New concept Easy to Clean by Textile Master allows to clean a seat in just minutes without having to take the cover off, therefore avoiding the risk of making marks or bleaching.

Moreover, it enables quick re-use thanks to a rapid drying within an hour.
